

As a mother of two Kingdom Kids children, I can honestly say that this ministry has doubly blessed my children and our household. My husband and I feel that our children are not only growing mentally and physically but they are also growing and being fed in their faith. I love when they get in the car and we talk about their mornings, I can feel my face beaming with joy when I hear them talk about the Lord and what they learned about Him that day.

I love how the teachers take time to pray over their days before the children enter the classrooms, and I appreciate how they offer their time and energy to pray for any prayer concerns for the families of the children. This to me is an act of Godly service and our children are reaping the blessings from it.

Not only can you feel the love oozing through the hallways of the school but you can sense the love in each classroom and through each teacher and helper. They are all on a mission and that is to serve the Lord in teaching and loving these children as Christ would have. I cannot think of a more productive environment for any child to be a part of than an environment filled with the love of Christ.

We have been blessed to be a part of three of the five classrooms and each one has offered our children something special. Each teacher brings special gifts and talents to the program and the rewards for the children are endless. If anyone would ask what our experience has been at KKNS, I would simply say it has been extremely rewarding and nurturing for my children and our family.

I must also say not only is our family involved from a parent and child experience but I as the mother, I am involved as a Board Of Directors member. I get a first hand glimpse of “the behind the scenes” workings of KKNS and I feel even more blessed to know that the Board is dedicated to loving and serving this ministry wholeheartedly. Each Board member serves with the children and the families in mind and what they bring to the table is an unselfish love for the spiritual, physical and mental growth of these children.

In closing, God certainly knew what He was doing when He brought this ministry to MLUPC. He continues to use his people wisely to reach the lives of our children. In the book of Mark chapter 10 versus 13-16, God used Jesus to bless the little children by laying hands on them and praying over them, today God uses others to bless our children in wonderful and remarkable ways.

Thank you KKNS for loving and teaching my children.

From Tina, a richly blessed mother of two.
