

Hi there!

I just wanted to write you and thank you again for the wonderful job that you do with the kids. Last night Lewis came into the room with a notebook and said "mommy this is the Bible" then he begins to recite passages. Drew and I just looked at each other and all we could say is that we love his school. Last night Drew sat with the three of them and read from his Toddler Bible and he was just got so excited about listening and was quick to point out the verses that he knew.

He is proud of the card everyone made for him as well. He has showed it to everyone. What a great idea to make the card; it went right along with me telling him that everyone missed him when he was not there.

Anyway, I just want to tell you again how very happy we are to have you teaching him. Have a wonderful weekend!
